

APOLLO, the Apache Point Observatory Lunar Laser-ranging Operation, continues routine ranging measurements to the Moon, operating in the millimeter regime. This talk will provide an overview of the instrument— including the superconducting gravimeter, characterize ranging performance, and present compelling evidence for reflector degradation— including results from recent eclipse observations.